

OBJECT ID	2007.1.5
OBJECT NAME	Dish, Ice Cream
DATE CREATED	1900s
MATERIAL	Glass
OBJECT ENTITIES	SANGALIS, THEADORE (owned by) SANGALIS, THEADORE (is related to) Sangalis, Diana (is related to)
RELATED ITEMS	Dish, Ice Cream, 2007.1.1 Dish, Ice Cream, 2007.1.2 Dish, Ice Cream, 2007.1.3 Dish, Ice Cream, 2007.1.4 Spoon, Ice Cream, 2007.1.6.1 Spoon, Ice Cream, 2007.1.6.2 Spoon, Ice Cream, 2007.1.6.3 Spoon, Ice Cream, 2007.1.6.4 Spoon, Ice Cream, 2007.1.6.5 Spoon, Ice Cream, 2007.1.6.6 Bowl, Serving, 2007.1.7
ACCESS POINTS	Social spoons Tableware

OBJECT DESCRIPTION

Glass ice cream sundae dish. Resembles a lotis flower on top. Dish is atop a glass stem and base.

ORIGIN

Ice cream and its various forms (gelato, frozen custard, frozen yogurt, sorbet) have been among the favorite desserts of American and Greek culture. Ice cream is said to have been invented in the Persian empire around 400 BC when snow, saved in a yakhchal (ice house) to be kept cool until summer, would be flavored and served. This recipe evolved throughout the ages, created with different means and ingredients. Such serving bowls may be used during special gatherings to serve ice cream.

CITATION

Dish, Ice Cream, 1900s, National Hellenic Museum, <https://collections.nationalhellenicmuseum.org/Detail/objects/>. Accessed 05/05/26.
