OBJECT DESCRIPTION

ORIGIN

This button was donated by Jenny Boondas. It was part of a collection belonging to her brother-in-law, Constantine Brown, who died in 2014. This button is from World War II. It was likely made for the Greek American community to support both the Greek and American efforts in the war. The statue on the pin depicts Nike, the Ancient Greek Goddess of Victory. The button either celebrates an Allied victory in the war or simply promotes the idea of future victory.
