OBJECT DESCRIPTION

Greek cartoon [Hitler, Mussolini, and unidentified man] from The Sphinx magazine. The caption reads: {Text in Greek} [The New Meeting; Benito, what are you looking at on the map, your future conquests for the Italian Empire? On the contrary, I am looking to find a deserted island in the oceans where we are to spend our last days.].

ORIGIN

The Sphinx: English Illustrated Weekly, published and distributed in Cairo from 1892 until 1947, was an English language magazine whose intended audience included British expatriates living in Egypt and elite English speaking Egyptians. Besides reporting news of interest to the English-speaking community, it offered accounts of social and sporting events in Egypt. Illustrated with photographs and other images, The Sphinx was also notable for its coverage catering to automobile enthusiasts in Egypt.
