

natural beauty of Greece in all its splendor, light everywhere and sunbeams on all sides. For Greece is a region of unusual fascination and charm. The air is pure and sparkling. All the colors of the rainbow are dancing in the air, casting a spell over the whole land.

On every hand mountains lift themselves into the sky. Flowers have always grown in profusion and the whole of the earth is carpeted with green grass at all Seasons.

But enough of the natural beauty of Greece -

So now get ready, for we are going to take an imaginary trip to Greece by visiting that exhibition which so many school children had come to see 25 years ago.

The greater part of the exhibition was made up of beautiful pictures of Greece, places famous in history and song. It was so arranged that it showed Greece from the dawn of civilization to our modern days - an unbroken life of 5000 years.

There were several pictures of the Island of Crete, the birth-place of Zeus and the home of the Minotaur.

Pictures from the excavations there, showing the palace of Minos and the Labyrinth. Huge jars where the people kept grain and oil, as provisions, in case of a seige. Mural paintings in beautiful colors, still bright in spite of their long residence underground. Other articles, so fine in workmanship that challenge the skill of the workmen of today.

There were pictures of Mycenae where a great civilization existed 3000 before Christ. The excavations there revealed the palace of Agamemnon, one of the Kings who took part in the Trojan war and his tomb filled with great objects of art, as it was the custom then to bury their dead kings with. They found in his grave swords and beautiful daggers of bronze inlaid with precious metals, gold jewelry of exquisite workmanship, pottery, drinking cups of beaten gold and silver. Some of these articles were made in Greece and some were imported or captured in war.
