OBJECT DESCRIPTION

A newspaper page of an article typed with black ink; The article has been collaged onto a page with other clippings to create a book. At the top right-hand corner is the name of the newspaper company that printed the article, which reads, "The Galveston Daily News," with the date "Sunday, January" to the right. At the top left-side corner is the article title, which reads, "Beauty of Ancient Greek Dances Revived by Modern Artists in Athens Theater. Underneath the title is the author, reading as "Marie Economidy (written in Athens)." The article is large and composed of 14 paragraphs that have been broken into three categories, Greek Vases, Beauty of Dance, and Know to America. In the center of the page, in an enclosed lined box is a separate article. The title reads, "Remark at Coolidge Fete Amused Capital," written by "Associated Press." At the very bottom of the newspaper is folding damage, obstructing a portion of the text.
