OBJECT DESCRIPTION

A black-and-white photographic print. Two men in priest vestments on either side of the photograph. There is a line of people leading up to them, and the people at the head of the line are standing between them. The men are wearing suits and the woman is wearing a dress. The priest on the left his holding something out in his right hand. and the man next to, him, facing the camera, is also holding out his right hand. There is a man and a woman behind the man in front. There is also a tall, young man to the right, looking on. The priest on the right is holding a book. The entire group is standing in front of a building.

Writing on the back of the photo says:

St. Andrews Greek Orthodox Church

6-24-56

South Bend, Indiana

ORIGIN

This photograph is from the consecration of St. Andrew's in South Bend, Indiana, in 1956. At the time, the church was located on Michigan Avenue, however the congregation is now located on Ironwood Road. The identities of the people in the photo are unknown, but it appears that the priest on the left may be giving communion to the man in front.
