OBJECT DESCRIPTION

Black and white / sepia-toned photograph of a small group of men posing with a young lady in front of a large brick building.

They are standing on a large lawn area with a sidewalk and shrubbery in the distance behind them. The young lady is wearing a light colored dress with cap sleeves and a hem length that falls just beneath her knees. She is also wearing matching light colored hosiery and shoes. She has a corsage of white roses on her left shoulder and a sash that says "Miss Miami" running across her right. Her hair is dark, curly and cropped short at chin length. She is smiling broadly and wears an AHEPA fez on her head. The man to the right is older and wears a light colored suit, striped tie and a white fedora summer hat. He is holding her hand. Both of the men on the outside are about the same age as the other man, and are wearing the AHEPA fez, thick dark sash around their waist, white trousers, white shoes and white dress shirt with a dark tie. Everyone is smiling.

There is also another small group of men standing to the right. They are also dressed in AHEPA uniform; white shirt and pants, dark tie, dark waist sash, matching fez with tassel. Although they are not the subject of the photo, they can be seen standing off to the side in random fashion enjoying the moment.
