OBJECT DESCRIPTION

ORIGIN

Christina Loukas (b. Riverwoods, Illinois, December 19, 1985) is an American diver. She competes in the 3 m springboard event.

Loukas's father is from Greece. She was born and grew up in Riverwoods, Illinois, and studied gymnastics, swimming, and diving from an early age, before switching to diving exclusively at age twelve. She attended Deerfield High School in Deerfield, Illinois and competed in the off season with the Coho Swim Club. She later moved to Bloomington, Indiana and currently lives in Woodlands, Texas.

She attended Indiana University and swam for the Indiana Hoosiers, where she was an eight-time NCAA All-American. Loukas won all three diving events at the conference championships, and was one of only four Big Ten divers to accomplish that feat. She graduated in May 2009.

Loukas placed fourth at the 2008 World Cup, and competed in the 2008 Summer Olympics in Beijing, China, placing ninth.
