OBJECT DESCRIPTION

Black 16mm film. Contents of film are unknown. The film is not bound to a reel. It measures 16mm in width and there are holes on both edges of the film at 6mm intervals. The film has become misshapen and is bound in an oval shape. There is sticky tape residue at the beginning of the strip, implying that there was once something taped to this strip. There are a few splotches of a yellow substance. The first few slides of the film depict people on a sailboat on an unknown body of water.

ORIGIN

16mm film was invented by the 1923 by the Eastman Kodak company as a cheaper, amateur alternative to 35mm film. It was originally intended to be used to make movies in one's home, but eventually began to be used for filming educational programs. Additionally, 16mm film was used in poorer foreign countries before they had access to professional light cameras.

Doctor John N Nicholson was a Greek immigrant doctor who practiced in the Chicago area for 50 years and was well known member of the Greek-American community. Nicholson created the movie Present Day Greece and Its Mediterranean Islands from 1946-1951. It is a three hour long documentary meant to educate Americans about Greece and the Greek-American identity in order to dispel negative stereotypes. There is no evidence that this film strip was in the documentary. There is no information on where or when the film was shot.
